

Robin John Gibb:

“As you might’ve heard from Marion, the opening of KTT’s new e-commerce storefront, as well as other KTT endeavours (apart from of course tomorrow’s auction performance which I will detail below) have been postponed for technical as well as personal reasons, to be resumed at the earliest tomorrow, the latest on Monday.

- Performance tomorrow – Auction, July 18. 2020 live start at: 19.00 hours British Time

Blue Weaver, the Brothers Egiziano & myself, will all be performing together once again, but for the first time under the banner of our new KTT Project Legacy ensemble aka ‘Legacy’, to help raise money for, and garner participation in, Errol Kennedy & his wife Bev Sage’s Drum For The NHS Auction. Don’t miss out, it’ll be an absolute blast, the first of its kind and truly an evening to remember I’m for one am very much looking forward to it. I love performing with these gentlemen. I’ve known Blue for as long as I can remember, he’s an amazing keyboard player and was a true asset to the Bee Gees at the height of their success, and my good friends from Calabria are instantly recognisable as 3 real brothers who’ve been harmonising together for a very long time, they’re an absolute pleasure to work with. I hope you all enjoy the show. My good friend & business partner Andrew Eborn will be vlogging with me and others before and after the event, which supports a cause I support with all my heart

A cause for which I have donated a pair of my late father’s now iconic blue shades, one of his ‘aeronautic’ style specs from his small collection of blue, violet my rose tinted and mirrored (flash lensed) sunglasses. He used this pair for many an occasion but mostly for driving to and from the studio and for attending outdoor events.

Along with the shades I’ve included a picture which my father loved & kept framed on his bedside nightstand of him in a vintage circa 18th century period costume, which he wore to a party thrown in Miami Beach by some clothing store owner named Vivienne Westwood 😊

Finally I’ve included 2 CDs, ‘50 St. Catherine’s Drive’, which was his last album, co-produced by myself, & the ‘Titanic Requiem’, his first classical music piece and our first full collaboration together, I’d produced and written songs with him in the past but this was our first album together as composers & recording artists. Each CD is signed by me, both with my signature and a written message I’ve included in memory of my late great beloved father.

All 4 items come as a ‘package’ and I know he would’ve wanted them to go to such a worthy cause during such a terrible and unprecedented world crises as this.

For tomorrow’s auction please use this link to browse through the available items donated by many music industry greats, friends, colleagues & also people I looked up to as a child a fantastic collaboration which I hope bears even more fruit than Errol's and all the participating drummer's amazing efforts already have :

Whether or not you are able to participate in the auction (as it might not be the right time for you and that is of course completely understandable at such a trying time as this.

However if not can you please share this press release and auction link?

If so, then please by all means send it out to anyone you may know who you suspect might be interested in the auction

Also we of course welcome and encourage any members of the press who might be interested in interviewing or zooming with Errol, Bev, and/or myself, Andrew, Blue, the Brothers Egiziano, or indeed any of the Drumathon participants. We want to garner as much coverage and interest as humanly possible for a cause which is absolutely crucial and truly life saving. All the help we can muster would be much appreciated.

I've attached as a photo a screen-grab of the latest Press Release and the auction link is once again below.

Just please remember to share this press release to everyone and anyone who may be interested, it's for a very worthy cause and such a simple action as sharing these links could indeed save lives.

Love and kind regards to you all, stay safe my friends

Godspeed & God bless, Sincerely, RJ xxxx

PS.: If there are any typos above it's because I was typing fast and have a lot to do, so I couldn't proofread it...motoring along, multi-tasking “
